Mayor's Office of Cable & Communications/TV25 Offers Spanish Translation on Website

Baltimore, MD (September 20, 2007) – The Mayor's Office of Cable & Communications/TV25 now offers a Spanish translation of its website, www.TV25Baltimore.com. Spanish speaking residents make up a rapidly growing percentage of Baltimore's population.

"Baltimore City government must be welcoming to all residents – old and new," said Mayor Dixon. "With the Spanish-speaking population growing, it is important that we provide everyone access to the best source for news about Baltimore City."

In order to fulfill TV25's unique mission of reaching all segments of the city's population with vital information, it is clear that conveying information in Spanish is an important component of our efforts to entertain and inform all of Baltimore's citizens about the opportunities and resources available to them.

"In addition to providing Spanish open captioning on some of our programs, this is the next step in our continuing efforts to address diverse populations in our city," said Marilyn Harris-Davis, Executive Director of the Mayor's Office of Cable & Communications/TV25. "The Spanish translation is just a click away in the upper right hand corner of TV25's home page."

TV25 serves as an educational and entertainment tool showcasing the accomplishments of city government and the citizens of Baltimore while providing information on the utilization of city services, resources and history.
